BATHROOMS that do it BETTER

Playgrounds for self-expression, these spaces are anything but bland. Take inspiration from their bold attitudes to colour, materials and mood

Of this EARTH

For the past few decades, the bathroom has been the domain of sanitation and sharply delineated edges. But as this area of the home has gradually shifted into a sanctuary for relaxation, natural materials and raw textures have found their way to the fore, fostering a calm and comforting feel. Whether you choose wood, stone, plaster or tiles, the key is to reject uniformity and embrace earthy surfaces which vary subtly in tone and touch. ►

This space designed by House of Grey (houseofgrey.co.uk) features Studio LoHo's 'Clay bath', from £6,430 (studioloho.com) and natural plaster walls by Tadelakt, from £179 per sq m (tadelakt.co.uk). 'Half Dome Wall Lamp', from approx £1,273, Allied Maker (alliedmaker.com). 'Floor Mounted Spout', from £2,175, Studio Ore (studio-ore.com)

PUZZLE it out

Proving that marble can be playful, this space utilises a patchwork of coloured stones to create a striking pattern. Err on the minimalist side for fixtures and fittings, perhaps picking out a shade or two from the stonework for walls or woodwork.

Architecture firm Atelier Parisien is behind this design (atelierparisien.com). Try Landford Stone for marbles and off-cuts (landfordstone.co.uk). 'Stand' washbasin with 'Matt Black' stand by Norm Architects for Ex.t, £1,457, West One Bathrooms (westonebathrooms.com). For a similar tap, try Cea's 'Freestanding 'MIL20' tap in stainless steel, £1,295, West One Bathrooms (westonebathrooms.com)
